MILK WAR DECLARED

Members of N. E. M. P. A. Refuse to Sell to C. Brigham Company on Latter's Terms

Local interest in the N. E. M. P. A. hold out for a fair price for milk was aroused, when the County officials received word from headquarters to notify members not to take any more milk to C.
Brigham Creamery, which is one of the concerns that refused to pay what the Association considers a fair price.

The Brigham company has offered a contract to the farmers of seven and one-half cents delivered in Boston with the old surplus agreement. The farmers demand seven cents delivered in Boston, with no station charges to be deducted and surplus milk to be paid for on the basis of the value of its butterfat made into butter.
The officials in this vicinity received word Saturday from the head of the N. E. M.
P. A. not to carry milk to the C. Brigham Company.

Sunday morning, J. B. McKinley of Stowe, president of the county organization, F. B. Jones, county agent and Mr.
Adams of St. Johnsbury, district organizer for the association, patrolled Wabun avenue and stopped the farmers who had not been previously notified and told them to take their milk to the Farmers' Co-operative creamery, which they did.

The Co-operative creamery has agreed to handle the milk and pay for the butterfat until the matter can be adjusted.

Waterbury is made the headquarters for central Vermont in the arrangements for meeting the milk situation, the committee being H. P. Adams, St. Johnsbury, Mark H. Moody, Waterbury, B. B. Mc-Kinley, Stowe, and C. E. Dunham, of Bethel. While the output is being well handled, many of the farmers ably assisted by their wives have pulled out their separators, cleaned them up and now have them in working order.

Sued for $18,000

Suit has been entered in Washington county court by Jessie W. Hayes of Waterbury against E. G. Foss and Ned A.
Foss of Morristown for $12,000 damages and by her husband, Dean C. Hayes, against the same defendants for $6,000, with provision that their bodies be taken if the sum sued for is wanting. The cases arise from an automobile accident which occurred in Waterbury June 19, 1921.

The claim of Mrs. Hayes is that the defendants drove their car negligently and struck her car, driving the body out of place and crushing it, and breaking the fender, running board and windshield.
Beside the sum necessary for repairs, she claims that she lost the use of the car for a part of the year and paid for the use of another car. Her car had the right of way, it is claimed.

Mrs. Hayes was also permanently injured, according to charges. At the time of the accident, it is claimed she was injured in the back, left side, arms, neck and chest. The Hayes car was driven by Moses E. Decell, it is stated, and the other by Ned A. Foss son of E. G. Foss.

Mr. Hayes claims injury to himself in cuts on the wrists, arms, and hands from broken glass from the windshield and bruises which laid him up for two weeks, and also claims damages on the disability of his wife for her duties about the house.

Death of William J. Perry

William J. Perry died last Thursday morning at his home at the head of Lake Lamoille. He had been ill for about four weeks, although he had not been confined to the bed all of the time. His condition was not so favorable Wednesday, and gradually grew worse until the end, which came at six o'clock Thursday morning.
Death was due to cancer of the liver.
The funeral was held from the home Saturday afternoon, Rev. W. T. Best officiating. The bearers were Abbott Amsden, Alexander Bruce and the two brothers.
The remains were placed in the vault and will be interred in Cambridge in the spring.

Mr. Perry was born in Cambridge, June 25, 1876, coming here with his family about 15 years ago. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Carrigan, who has been in feeble health for a number of years, three brothers, Burt, who has been blind for some time, Fred of Hyde Park and Lonnie of Belvidere and two sisters, Mrs.
Libbie Burns of Belvidere and Ella Braley of Bakersfield.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Fisher have moved from the Luce house on Main street to the upstairs tenement in the Andrew Calkins residence on Pleasant street.

Frank Whipple, a teamster for C. H.
A. Stafford & Sons, received a serious injury to one of his limbs below the knee, yesterday. He was drawing logs near the Norton Jones farm in Hyde Park and was standing on the load when the binder chain gave away. He was struck with the binder below the knee. As he was seven miles from a doctor, and the leg was so badly swollen it was difficult to determine the extent of the fracture, but it is thought that the large bone was broken.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Ameri-

Sweetser, vice-president; Addie Kelley, secretary; Edna Sargent, treasurer; Ab-ing the membership 74. After the busi-

Helen Robinson, in behalf of the Auxilary, presented the Legion a check of $50 to help purchase a banner, Major Geo.
L. Bates responding. The following interesting program was rendered: Vocal solo, Mrs. Gertrude Powers; instrumental solo, Cornelia Mould; reading, Gwendolyn Child. The Legion Quartet gave several selections and refreshments were served by the officers.

McKinley Night at W. R. C.

The W. R. C. meeting held Monday evening at the G. A. R. hall was most interesting. After the regular business, the hour for good of the order was made especially interesting by Mrs. Sophia Goodliffe's readings in memory of William McKinley. Brief sketches of his life were given as a boy learning his alphabet; young manhood, service in the war, when he was made Major and later on, President of the United States. Emphasis was given to his thought of Abraham Lincoln and his desire to be like him; a solo by Mrs. Anna H. Fortier, "Lead Kindly Light," Mr. McKinley's favorite hymn.
All enjoyed the hour very much and those not present missed a rare treat.

Celebrate Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Cheney celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary Tuesday. They are the only couple residing in town at this time who were living in Morristown at the time of their marriage.

Mr. Cheney was born on the farm now owned by Henry Walton in the west part of the town, which was settled and cleared up by his father, Thomas Cheney, who was one of the early settlers of this town, coming here from Plainfield, N. H. Mrs.
Cheney, the daughter of Sylvester W. and Lydia (Ferrin) Gates, was born on the farm now owned by Arthur Stancliffe, living there until she was five years old, when her parents bought the farm now owned by Erwin Terrill, where she lived until her marriage. The first eight years of their married life were spent on the Cheney farm, but forty-eight years ago they removed to Morrisville to the home now occupied by them on Main street, where they have since lived.

Mr. and Mrs. Cheney occupy a warm place in the hearts of Morrisville people and this paper joins heartily their host of friends in extending congratulations.
Both are enjoying excellent health and retain a deep interest in and love for Morrisville and her people. In the earlier days Mr. Cheney was a leader and tireless worker in all that pertained to the best interests of this village and has held many important offices. He represented Morristown in the Legislature of 1922.

of illness.

Everybody was saying—My! didn't the wind blow, aside from the usual catastrophes of a high wind several windows were blown in around here.

Tom Hanley was a business visitor in Essex last Friday. During his absence the mails were transported by Gen. Lee assisted by "Red Pepper."

A. J. Clark has been having a severe tussle with the grip. Somewhat better now. Frank Strong is assisting in the store during Mr. Clark's illness.

Sure its "Geo. Junior", if you don't believe it enquire of his daddy Geo. Daley, who fixes up the autos. The boy arrived last Wednesday night, Jan. 18. Congratulations.

The morning service at the Cong'l church had a fair attendance last Sunday, considering the weather. The choir was augmented by a male sextette, who very finely rendered an anthem.

Mrs. Jesse Sheldon of Wells River and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Rowen and daughter Ruth of Woodsville were recent guests at W. D. Strong's. Of course little Miss Ruth had "right of way" in everything while here.

Mrs. Alice Young, who has had so much trouble with her right hand, went to the hospital last week for examination. The X Ray brought to light a piece of a needle she got into her hand more than twenty

New hardwood floors in the upper halls and several of the rooms, take place of the soft wood and dots away their place at the Hyde Park Inn. The past year was a very good one at this popular hostelry and Mine Savery is looking for an even better season the coming summer. The winter season finds a good patronage there—travelling men having a liking for the accommodations and Savery's cordial welcome.
